Love and Theft is an American country music duo formed in 2006 consisting of Stephen Barker Liles and Eric Gunderson. Known for their harmony vocals and compelling songwriting, they first gained attention with their hit single "Runaway" in 2009. Their self-titled album includes the chart-topping single "Angel Eyes," which solidified their place in country music. Blending contemporary sounds with traditional country influences, Love and Theft's music captures heartfelt narratives and catchy melodies. Love and Theft has electrified audiences at thousands of shows, including prominent fairs, festivals, esteemed clubs, and international venues. Their magnetic presence and engaging performances make them a crowd favorite everywhere they go.
